

'Nixon's The One' At Harper College

by DAVID MAHSMAN
The youth vote. Congress and the states approved it, political candidates chase it and political analysts wonder what it will mean in election results.
Harper College in Palatine is perhaps the largest single concentration of newly-enfranchised young voters in the Northwest suburbs. The Herald interviewed 44 Harper students this week to determine their thoughts — and sometimes lack of thoughts — on the presidential election only a little more than a month away.
"McGovern is making a fool out of himself."
"Nixon is the lesser of two evils."
"Anybody is better than Nixon."
Of the 44 students interviewed, 18 picked President Nixon for reelection, and 11 said they like Sen. George McGovern. But 15 of the students either said they are undecided or that neither candidate is worth their vote.

The Nixon lead among the Harper students interviewed could probably be expected. Most of these kids live at home in the strongly Republican Northwest suburbs. Political scientists have long told us that children tend to pick up the political habits of their parents. It's true that college students away from home may differ politically with their parents for awhile, later returning to their parents' ways. But many of the Harper students have never left home and their parents' influence.
"I'M LIKE AN old conservative," said Gregg Rausch, 18, of Hoffman Estates. Rausch does not look like your run-of-the-mill conservative. He dresses in jeans and his hair is as long or longer than that of many of his fellow students at Harper. But Rausch likes Nixon just the same. He says that the President "has done a fine job," and that McGovern is only promising to do what Nixon has been doing for four years — getting the United States out of Vietnam.

"I wish there was a better choice," complained Martha Walters, 19, who lives at home in Northbrook. She says she will vote for Nixon, but adds that neither the President nor Sen. McGovern impress her very much. For example, she cites McGovern's failure to vote on a recent anti-war amendment in the Senate as evidence that he is "inconsistent." But then she says Nixon has reduced ground troops in Vietnam only after escalating the air war.
Bob Schaefer, 19, of Elk Grove Village, looks like the stereotyped McGovern-supporting student that is conjured up in the minds of staunch conservatives. His long hair spills over his shoulders and he peers through wire glasses. Indeed, he will probably vote for McGovern next month. But he says he really doesn't like either candidate, as did most of the students, whether they were for Nixon or McGovern.

Still, all but six of the 44 students interviewed had some opinion on the presidential election. Most seemed interested in the contest, and everyone knew who is running.
Then the questions got tricky. They were asked who they would like to see elected governor of Illinois.
"WHO'S RUNNING?" one girl asked.
"I don't know anything about it," said another.
Exactly half — 22 out of 44 — of the Harper students interviewed said they have no opinion in the governor's race. Most of these said they know very little about the contest.
"I'm not real informed," admitted one coed. She blamed the media for this. She said everything you read or hear is so

Deny Motion To Have Housing
Suit Dismissed

by KURT BAER
Judge William J. Lynch of U.S. District Court has denied a motion by the Village of Arlington Heights to dismiss a suit brought against it by the Metropolitan Housing Development Corporation (MHDC), prospective developer of a moderate-income housing project near St. Viator High School.
Judge Lynch's decision yesterday to deny the dismissal request virtually guarantees the MHDC suit will go to trial, although an exact trial date has not yet been set.
MHDC filed the suit last June challenging a village board decision made a year ago not to rezone 15 acres of Viatorian-owned land for a multi-family, moderate-income housing development.
The village's dismissal motion contended that allegations in the suit were not covered by the various civil rights laws which MHDC charges were violated by the village board's decision.
THE VILLAGE of Arlington Heights was not represented in Judge Lynch's court yesterday. Village Atty. Jack Siegel, who filed the dismissal motion, was unavailable for comment.
Another dismissal filed by Siegel in behalf of the City of Evanston, which is also defending a moderate-income housing rezoning suit, was denied earlier and Judge Lynch yesterday made reference to that denial in a very brief written opinion.
"I could deny this motion just for lack of prosecution," the judge said, noting the absence of legal counsel for the village, "but that is not my reason."
Dismissal motions are fairly routine in the defense of a civil law suit. As a next step, Judge Lynch gave the village 10 days in which to answer to the MHDC suit.
The answer will outline points of agreement and disagreement between the two parties.
Willis Caruso, MHDC attorney, said Wednesday he was pleased with the judge's decision and felt it cleared the way to proceed with the case.
The suit charges that the village board's decision not to rezone the Viatorian site is open to question on the technical merits of the use of zoning authority. It also alleges that because of the board's decision to reject the housing proposal, many low-income families living or working in the area have been deprived of adequate dwellings at reasonable prices.
THE VILLAGE BOARD voted 6 to 1 to reject the proposed 190-unit townhouse development, called Lincoln Green, after almost two years of informal discussions and public hearings on the project.
Board members voting against the project generally said they objected to the proposed multi-family rezoning because of the property's proximity to single-family neighborhoods.
Trustee Dwight Walton was the only village board member to vote in favor of the development.
Salvatore Ferrara, MHDC's executive director, said the organization's decision to file suit came after an extensive but unsuccessful search for an alternate site in Arlington Heights for the Lincoln Green development.
The suit seeks a court injunction barring the village from interfering with development of the project. It also seeks a court declaration that village zoning ordinances are "arbitrary, unreasonable, capricious and unconstitutional" as they have been applied to the proposed development.

NOW PERMANENTLY LOCATED behind the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, this chest X-ray unit will be open to the public every Wednesday. The mobile unit formerly parked in front of the Ben Franklin store twice a month but several months ago the Suburban Cook County Tuberculosis Sanitarium District announced it was discontinuing mobile X-ray service. A federal report had criticized some mobile units for inadequate radiation screening but the sanitarium district denied that the criticism applied to units in use here.

United Fund Week Begins Saturday

The 1972/73 Arlington Heights United Fund U-Week will be formally kicked off at 11:15 a.m. this Saturday, Oct. 7 with a half-hour concert presented by the Arlington High School band.
The concert will be held outdoors at the Northwestern train station parking lot. The concert will also mark the dedication of the new United Fund thermometer which will show the progress of the drive.
This year's drive has an objective of $75,000, or about 50-per cent above last year's total amount collected.
This amount represented the increased amount needed by participating agencies, according to United Fund spokesmen.
This year's United Fund drive represents several divisions within the total community collection effort: Residential, $35,000; Educational, $8,000; Commerce and Industry, $20,000; Professional, $1,500; Municipal, $2,000; Clubs and Organizations, $1,000; Special Programs, $1,500.
According to United Fund organizers, the United Fund's mail solicitation has meant donations of over $10,000 to date.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The Senate voted to shelve all proposed welfare reform plans and retain the present, often criticized system for the next five to eight years. The Senate agreed to test competing solutions for two to four years before evaluating the results and passing new legislation.
President Nixon and Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko agreed that Soviet Communist Party Secretary Leonid Brezhnev will visit Washington next spring.
Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said he probably would have barred a former assistant from Soviet Grain negotiations last spring had he known of the aid's plans to join a private firm that ultimately sold wheat to the Russians.
A Superior Court judge in Newark, N.J. sentenced a reporter to jail for contempt after he refused to answer a series of questions before the Essex County Grand Jury.
A federal grand jury indicated two Chicago baking companies on charges of fixing prices and dividing up customers for the past 40 years in the sale of Italian, French and Vienna-style bread in the Chicago area.

The World

The Soviet Union has suffered its worst drought in a century but by using modern farm techniques and buying foreign grain the Russians are confident they will avoid a famine, according to Russia's minister of agriculture.

The leader of Northern Ireland's militant Protestants escaped an assassination attempt but police found two more victims shot to death for no apparent reason.

Former strongman Juan Peron warned that civil war might break out in Argentina unless the government accepted what he called 10 "minimal conditions" of his Peronist followers there.

The War

F111 fighter bombers went back into action in North Vietnam after a five-day lull while airmen searched for the wreckage of one of the controversial swinging craft lost on its first combat mission in four years. In the ground war, South Vietnamese troops battled through Communist road blocks and reopened the "lettuce road" from the mountain resort of Dalat to Saigon.
